DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 11-13 are objected to because of the following informalities:

In claim 11, it is unclear what is meant by “type.” It is unclear how “the first type of resistor is substantially different from a second order temperature coefficient of the second type of resistor.” Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 14 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Farooqui (2004/0257150).

Farooqui discloses an apparatus for providing an output reference voltage comprising a means for applying a bandgap reference voltage (see figure 4) across a biased portion of a voltage divider circuit (309) to provide a reference; and a means for calibrating the reference voltage, wherein the means for calibrating (M40-M42 and C4) the reference voltage includes a means for adjusting a controllable portion (M40-M42 and C4) of the voltage divider circuit.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 1-13, 15, 16, 18, and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Farooqui (2004/0257150) in view of Wiles, Jr. (6,556,155).

Farooqui discloses the invention substantially as disclosed but does not disclose a controllable portion of the voltage divider circuit arranged to calibrate the output by adjusting a controllable temperature coefficient of an impedance of the controllable portion in response to a trim signal. Wiles, Jr. discloses the use of a plurality of switches and a plurality of resistors arranged as a resistor digital-to-analog converter circuit (156) to calibrate temperature coefficient of an impedance is well known in the art. Thus, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to apply the adjustable voltage divider of Wiles, Jr. in the bandgap reference voltage generator of Farooqui to obtain the claimed invention for the purpose of providing stable voltage supply.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claim 17 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
